

Red and Black
January 25, 1972

Happiness

TO THE EDITOR:

This letter refers to a cartoon by Hamilton appearing in The Red and Black, Jan. 21, 1972. The caption read, "What a peculiar way of saying 'freedom for happiness!'"

Above that was a sketch of one speaking to another in front of a third who was carrying a placard bearing the two words, "GAY LIB."

Hamilton's "freedom for happiness" is a beautiful way of saying what Gay Liberation is about. On the other hand, its concerns are more than that. It is also about freedom from something.

That is freedom from being forced to play any role in as stereotyped a way as others might wish to believe. Ask Hamilton what is so peculiar about that.

JIM KAMBOURIAN